This course will examine race relations and racial discrimination through the perspectives of proponents of the Critical Race Theory (CRT) movement, a collection of legal scholars who challenge both conservative and liberal political orthodoxies. CRT is part of an evolving critical jurisprudential tradition that originated with Critical Legal Studies (CLS) in the 1970s, and now includes feminism, critical white studies, Queer Theory, Asian Crit, and Lat-Crit Theory as well. This semester a special emphasis will be placed on critical race feminism, an offshoot of CRT that focuses on the status of women of color under the law.

READINGS

The readings include: 1. CRITICAL RACE FEMINISM: A READER (Adrien Wing editor)(NYU Press 2d edition 2003)[hereinafter text]

2. Handouts

COURSE EVALUATION

1. There will be a take home open book final exam distributed at the end of the course. The number of days will be mutually agreed upon by the class. The exam will contain 3 essay questions for a total of 12 double spaced typed pages. The exam will count 60% of the final grade.

2. Each student will do one class presentation which will count 20% of the final grade. The presentation will include an oral portion in which the student will be responsible for leading class discussion on an article. This aspect may include a role play, moot court, film clip or some other creative component. Each student will submit a written portion which will contain: the written version of the oral component; and may contain the student's opinion of the strengths and weaknesses of the arguments; a comparison of the article to other articles in the course and outside knowledge if applicable; questions for discussion raised by the article; issues for further study, etc. While there is no maximum page length, it is contemplated that 2 single spaced pages should be sufficient. Each student should xerox sufficient single spaced copies for each class member. If this presents a financial problem, please let me know.

If you wish to do a power point presentation or show a video, you should contact Patty Ankrum in the Audiovisual room to reserve equipment and be trained at least a week in advance.
3. Class participation will count 20% of the final grade as well. It includes regular class attendance and preparation as well as active contribution to class discussion. Comments should evidence a mastery of the readings. If you are going to miss class, please email me.

4. Those desiring to do a research paper for writing credits should be sure to discuss the proposed paper with me early in the semester.

5. Anyone needing course or exam accommodations should contact Associate Dean Linda McGuire.
